Steps May Be Taken This Week To End Coal Strike

By Law.

GREAT SUFFERING IS FELT IN ENGLAND

Including the Miners There Are Probably Two Million At Present Idle.

London, March 11.—The National Miners' Federation unanimously decided tonight to accept the terms of the miners' invitation to meet the coal owners and the representatives of the government at a round table conference, at which Premier Asquith will preside. The conference will be held with the reservation that the principles of a minimum wage will be coupled from the discussion. It is understood that this means that the granting of a minimum wage is assumed to have been conceded, but it does not imply that the granting of a minimum wage is assumed to have been conceded, but it does not imply that the granting of a minimum wage is assumed to have been conceded.

The coal owners have not yet accepted the terms of the invitation. They will meet tomorrow to decide the question. Even if the Scottish owners refuse to be taken for granted that the English owners will accept. The conference will be held tomorrow afternoon, but the miners' representatives are not expected to attend. The conference will be held tomorrow afternoon, but the miners' representatives are not expected to attend.

The most hopeful basis of agreement is that some basis of agreement will be reached for the fixing of a minimum wage. The conference will be held tomorrow afternoon, but the miners' representatives are not expected to attend. The conference will be held tomorrow afternoon, but the miners' representatives are not expected to attend.

At present almost the entire nation is under notice to quit work, including the miners themselves. Some 2,000,000 persons are probably out of the work, and the situation is a most serious one. The conference will be held tomorrow afternoon, but the miners' representatives are not expected to attend.

London, March 11.—The second week of the coal strike begins with 25,000 workers there, and the situation is a most serious one. The conference will be held tomorrow afternoon, but the miners' representatives are not expected to attend.

We cannot agree to continue that, so far as Wales is concerned, it seems that no action will be taken. It is not our intention to do it, unless we are forced to do it. It is not our intention to do it, unless we are forced to do it.

On the other hand, Ramsay MacDonald, M.P., has said that the Labor party in Parliament heavily supports Premier Asquith for bundling the movement.

NEWS OF THE SOUTH SIDE

INDUSTRIES CARRIED ON ALONG RIVER FRONT

Hundreds of Men Are Engaged at Present Time in Getting Out Gravel, Removing the Ice and Securing the Sand.

Some citizens of Greater Edmonton are heard to remark, "if there was only no river it would be easier for Edmonton now to be a united city. The casual observer says the river makes no more difference or sectional division than would an imaginary line from north to south, for example, that does the fourth meridian at Lloydminster.

But there is a difference and there is a reason. The river is more like a street and it is at the present time one of the busiest thoroughfares of the city.

In the summer transportation downstream is easier than by either electric or steam railway. For upstream navigation power is needed, but coal is plentiful in the banks of the river even within the city limits. In the winter this last thoroughfare is paved with ice in many places about two feet thick. The snowfall has been light, so the ice is consequently very thick and strong, except where the warm water from the sewers or the discharge from the power plants cause the river to remain open for some distance near the low level bridges.

Heavy River Drive.
A few weeks ago about a hundred teams were employed on the river. The trail follows the river up stream as far as the island and as the river twists and turns, the teams have scored from point to point, not always following the ice but occasionally crossing a snow covered bar of sand or gravel.

The Harvest of the River.
In winter the river crop is a valuable one. The coal mines team their horses and build a lead-line on the bar or near the bank. Then when the frost has relaxed its hold, the men grip their shafts and lead up their sledges or wagons.

This wild winter has been a

In winter the river trail can be followed upstream to some of the logging camps of the lumber companies who shut their supply of gravel logs down with the current to be manufactured into lumber.

The steamer of J. Walter, Ltd., spent the winter behind a cascade which protects them from the downrush of ice in the spring break-up. A gang of workmen are already preparing for the spring break-up and are putting in fresh piles with a horse-drawn pile driver. From the saw mills a giant boom will be stretched up across the river so as to intercept the logs drifting downstream with the current when the ice drive begins.

This is a better plan than that of the old times when the crop of logs had to be bound into rafts, each manned with a separate crew.

Boatmen on the Bar.
But its odd to see that kind of millage being hauled upstream on the ice. The gravel is frozen and has to be thawed out. The gravel on tractor runs takes on a load of eight and builds a lead-line on the bar or near the bank. Then when the frost has relaxed its hold, the men grip their shafts and lead up their sledges or wagons.

This wild winter has been a valley are easily still onto the plateau, the wagon and hauled, then later passed away in sawdust till some hot day in summer.

City Here Because River is Here.
Because of the river the old Indian Bay Fort was first located here. Around it grew steadily the present capital city.

Because of the river the railway stopped short and another city began its development.

The old ferry across to winter camps on the shore till the broad ice bridge has melted away. In the early days the driver and the traders crossed as best they could before the first ferry was built. The surrounding basketry from the southern prairie several years in the fall of his swimming horse as he crossed the river to trade or steal.

Before the low level bridge was built there was a period of isolation for those north of the river when the ice bridge was firming or breaking or when the hot weather melted the snow of the Rocky Mountains and the broad current once rose so high that the newly constructed piers of the low level bridge were cut of sight in the water.

But that was a lucky frost, for the men were raised six feet before the steel bridge was put on.

Too Busy to Gather the Gold.
In the early days the river was a source for its gold mining. Even yet some of the gravel-contrators reap the gold from the sand and gravel. But this winter so much gravel has been required for building and pavements proposed to be constructed in the coming summer that there has been no time to wash the gold and it has been hauled along with the gravel or sand.

Even the clay banks are utilized and several brick yards of the city are kept busy all summer manufacturing building blocks of brick or concrete for use in the broad and shallow city.

That it will be seen that the river which appears to separate the city into two sections, after all is one of the most valuable assets and really furnishes the necessities of the modern up-to-date city. Water, fuel, building material, ice, transportation and pleasure are all furnished by the hardy Saskatchewan, which after all unites rather than separates the north side and the south side of the City of Edmonton.

GRIFFITHS' SOUVENIR.

In the real estate office of Calder & Foster, Whyte avenue, is a valise mail, which was presented to Albert Calder by Dr. Griffiths some nine years ago. It is the mail of a young three-year-old valise, and inside it rests the task of an old valise. They are interesting souvenirs of the time when Albert Calder was a lumber trader on the Labrador coast.

Albert Calder, agent of Dr. Griffiths' work as really a wonder. The intrepid medical missionary is chief adviser and friend to all on the Labrador coast; he is magistrate of the High Road, a postmaster, captain and one of the greatest navigators. No one can sound too high praise of his work as a medical doctor and his hospital further praise to all the world.

YEAR BEFORE NE TEMERE TEST CASE IS DECIDED

Application Made for Reference of Marriage Law—Will Be Heard
Commencing May 1st Next by the Supreme Court of Canada.

Ottawa, March 11.—The marriage law reference by the Dominion government, arising out of the Lancaster bill and the operation of the "Ne Temere" decree, will be heard by the Supreme Court on the first day of the May term, namely Tuesday, May 2. This was the decision of the chief justice when Deputy Minister of Justice, Mr. E. L. Newcombe, K.C., this morning submitted the application for hearing to the court. There was a full attendance of judges, namely, Chief Justice Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Sir Louis Davies, Hon. Justice Duff, Hon. Justice Duff and Hon. Justice Duff. The case within the bar were filed with a great array of counsel. In addition to Mr. Newcombe were Wallace, Nisbett, K.C., J. P. Hellyn, K.C., Eugene Lafleur, K.C., and P. H. Mignault. All are retained by the Dominion, Nisbett and Mignault to argue in support of the right of the Dominion parliament to legislate, and Messrs. Lafleur and Hellyn to argue on behalf of the other side of the argument. The Province of Quebec was represented by R. G. Smith, K.C., and Anna Giesler, K.C., with August Lehoucq, K.C., of Ottawa, as agent. E. A. Lancaster, M. P., was an interested spectator.

Mr. Newcombe did not have a chance to say very much. He had barely stated the purpose of the application for reference of the marriage question, under order of the governor-in-council, on February 22, when the chief justice interrupted by saying: "In anticipation of my colleagues, and we have come to the conclusion to fix the hearing of the case for the first day of the May term. In the meantime factum will be prepared and will be available for consideration by counsel, and will be returned into court ten days before the opening of the term. The court orders that notification be sent to the attorney-general of the various provinces and to the commissioner of the Yukon."

"Is there a commissioner of the Northwest territory?" asked Sir Charles Fitzpatrick.

"Yes," replied Mr. Newcombe, "but he is not concerned in this case, and may I also add, that the Yukon is not likely to be affected. It will involve the expense of telegraphing the order, which will be heavy."

The Chief Justice: "I think the financial condition of the Dominion is sufficient to allow for that."

R. C. Smith, K.C., stated that he was present on behalf of the Quebec government.

The Chief Justice: "You have not received any notice from this court."

Mr. Smith: "No, your lordship, but I am instructed to ask that the question shall stand until the justice committee has given a decision in the case now before it, concerning the incorporation of companies, which involves the same issues."

The Chief Justice: "You can make that objection at the date of the hearing."

This ended the matter. The questions to be submitted are the same as previously published on February 22. The same procedure will be followed in the case of the Land's Day reference to the privy council and a decision is unlikely for at least a year.

FEDERAL CABINET SIT FOR MOVING PICTURES

H. F. Galsky in the Toronto Star Tells How Members of Cabinet Jump Through the Hoops for Entertaining Though Nery Photographers From the U. S.

Even the bronze statues on Parliament Hill looked pleased under their burden of snow and ice. The Government was a half-triggered smile. Everybody backed up, and put his best foot forward.

The reason was a moving-picture artist, that was "Shooting the mark." The little galvanised iron microscope, which descended on Parliament in charge of two magnifying, one tall, thin and silver-haired, as a playwright, one short, stout and dark, as a stage manager, and the other, who did the "stage-man" act, who looked after the film. The two magnifying, who were working for an American film company, had their nerve with him. If there was anything they wanted and didn't see they asked for it—and got it. In addition to their nerve they had letters from President Taft, who was their previous victim, which letters got them in right, pretty nearly everywhere. Their professed object was a moving picture history of Canada from Jacques Cartier down, but they did not seem as keen on Jacques Cartier as on the live ones who haven't reached the old painting stage yet. They avowed aim of the moving picture history of Canada was to please King George in his palace in London, but as the operator incessantly talked of exhibiting it to twenty million people, it will probably also be used to swell the revenues of the Hingham company. At any rate everybody fell for it.

The activities of the moving picture men lasted five days. When they left Ottawa there wasn't a statement of prominence—except one that they had managed to get in. They took all the power that could be grabbed and left Parliament quite drained of brisk attitudes.

Speaker Laidlaw is taken in, how surroundings in the Senate. His head looks like a port little sparrow. His eyes twinkle, he almost seems to be asking questions which which he uttered the order paper when he was in Opposition. It is all very life-like.

cause, under present conditions, it does not move fast enough to make the "whats go round," and they did not take the trouble because they don't like the new Government collectors, and in some cases individually finding it as ready as a young college student for a new-made order to sit, stand or move for the picture. A new government to take for the moving picture men. It will jump through hoops as long as it gets the advertising. It has so much of it that it doesn't care a "ho" for dignity. Moving pictures of society and trouble the modern government may have been before. Now that it has been snipped—curses that daisies were "snipped" it will be doubly moving. It may be cheaper to move than pay the Nationalists rent.

Premier Borden is taken in his private office in the west wing of the House of Commons in an attitude of profound thought. When the picture comes on, it is always done when he is thinking hard. Also his hand will be seen balancing a school duster in the Manitoba boundary bill. This is one of the most moving parts of the picture.

Speaker Borden is taken in the Speaker's apartments in the White House. The Speaker, stately in his three-cornered hat and black robes, walks slowly across the room to a bowl of roses which he smells and admires. The dark red roses make a pleasing foil to Speaker Borden's fair beauty. Ten Speaker expresses a desire to have his good friend and confidant, the mace, placed in the picture. He maces his way down. The mace is brought out of its cupboard. It is Horace, the head-water, who is holding it. The mace is the best picture of the series.

The Sergeant-at-Arms is taken in the front porch of Parliament, with the great Gothic building as a background. The Colonel, in full regalia, all his medals showing, deploys in single file through the big door, bow, smile, wheel, right-about-face, and then back again. It is one of the best pictures of the series.

Speaker Laidlaw is taken in, how surroundings in the Senate. His head looks like a port little sparrow. His eyes twinkle, he almost seems to be asking questions which which he uttered the order paper when he was in Opposition. It is all very life-like.

We are making a very conservative statement when we say that this property will double your money in a short time. See for yourself the advantages it possesses; its position, for one thing, right in the direction of the city's growth. It is only a question of a short time until the Clover Bar road (on which the property faces) will be a big thoroughfare, crowded with street car and vehicular traffic. The completion of the Alberta College will add to the value of surrounding property, and Boulevard Heights is within a stone's throw of the building. All these reasons mean simply this; that the persons interested now in this property, will in the near future reap big profits. Come out and see for yourself just what we offer. (Continued from Page 2)

DR. GREENFELL'S LECTURE.

On Wednesday night the South Side will be favored with an opportunity of hearing the great hero, Dr. Greenfell, tell of his work in Labrador. His lecture will be illustrated with lantern slides.

Once when the missionary doctor was travelling on the frozen waters of the Atlantic he found the sea drifting out to sea on a floating cake of ice. He killed one of his dogs. The slide was used to keep the brave man from freezing. The most was used for food for the other hungry dogs. The bones were tied together to make a mat upon which the doctor's sweater was huddled as a signal. Thus the rescuer of Labrador was rescued by a passing steamer. The lecture will be held in the Methodist church, North Side, where who wish to hear Dr. Greenfell on this night may take the street car to the corner of White Avenue and Main street, then walk a block north and half a block west.

That the city is famous for its humanity. The lecture is of importance of the University of M. C. A., but the net proceeds are for the assistance of Dr. Greenfell's worthy work on the labor coast.

COLLEGIATE CONCERT TONIGHT

The last of the series of popular collegiate concerts will be held tonight in the Collegiate Institute when the J. H. Cameron Concert Party will give a high class entertainment. J. H. ## VIEWS AND REVIEWS.

After last night's hockey game the teams ought to be very careful in the selection of officials. When a team begins to discover that it can get away with rough work or with offensive play, it is perfectly natural that they should take advantage of the opportunity if there is any particular incentive to win. When any one man on a team starts to rough it, everyone follows his example. A judge of play must shut off the first offender promptly.

The Eatons were completely outclassed by the Winnipeg Victorians in their second game and that playing under O.H.A. rules, which gave the eastern team a slight advantage. They were beaten worse than the Calgary team was beaten, which goes to show that the Alberta team are playing just as good if not better hockey than the famous Ontario organization.

Sixteen to one is a very one-sided score. It shows that the losers were absolutely out of the game as their opponents.

The result of the game should at least awaken a little respect for western hockey teams among the eastern magpies.

After everything had been arranged for a four team league in Alberta and drafts for the schedule prepared by the different managers, word comes from Lethbridge that there will not likely be a team there and the well thought out league is broken up.

The Lethbridge Amateur Club which holds the franchise in the Western Canada League, has absolutely refused to give its franchise to the Calgary syndicate. The Calgary syndicate as represented by Reid will not put a team in Lethbridge unless it is given the franchise. The two statements are quite definite and unless a compromise is reached there will be no team.

The only basis on which a compromise can possibly be reached is by the Lethbridge Athletic Club giving the Calgary party a lease on the franchise as well as on their support and grounds. The Calgary syndicate has refused to take the support of the Lethbridge Athletic Club unless their franchise is given with it. The franchise is going to be a valuable thing in a few years and the club would be foolish to sell it to the Calgary people.

Jack Canella is going somewhat strong in the program he has arranged for Winnipeg boxing fans. He claims to have arranged for the nearly all the top-notch prize-fighters in the United States to go to the Manitoba metropolis and box there. Just how far the authorities will let him go with it is a matter which he should take into consideration before entering into any contracts with the pugilists.

Abe Attell seems to be going down hill rapidly. His defeat by Murphy practically puts him out of the business, as his value in the bush towns is nil. He is no longer a drawing card. The report of the fight is correct and there is no particular reason to doubt its correctness. It indicates that Attell recognizes that he is a has been and is attempting to keep up his value as an attraction by artificial means. ## THE MAN IN GALLERY IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

Inside Views of Men and Events in the Spotlight at Ottawa by H. F. Gadsby in the Toronto Star.

One of Archibald Douglas's pet plans is a museum annex big enough to take care of blue books and newspapers. Blue books particularly are a great nuisance. They have a dreadful habit of accumulating for every year of them are burned or sent to the dump.

One of the questions on the "disorderly page" of the press gallery, dinner was "Why do blue books continue blue?" The answer is because they are neglected. There is no more foolish thing in literature than a blue book, and yet it is valuable historical material, and when any body happens to want one he is pretty sure to find it very hard to get. This is the chief reason why Archibald Douglas would have them preserved.

Another reason is that, besides the facts contained there, they harbor much good writing. Purple patches are frequent. It is surprising how these dry-as-dust officials let themselves go in speech and what people of good sense here before Deputy Ministers who do not appreciate it. A history instructor also asked from his desk inspecting for a couple of minutes to give a state of perfect description about salmon appearing in British Columbia. A topographical surveyor like his thought of his mind long enough to tell, with mastery simplicity and reserve, some desperate feat of mountain climbing. Or a lithographic engineer related in words of one syllable a hairbreadth rescue from the sea. Average blue books up and they will away one little gem to every two hundred pages.

As for the Royal Northwest Mounted Police reports, they are tabular romance. A file of them for twenty years back would furnish a thousand short story writers with plots for the remainder of their natural lives. These riders of the plain, many of whom have short story parts of their own, are by way of being, in the regular course of duty, military policemen, judges, criminologists, census takers, land lookers, statisticians, metaphysicians, explorers, ethnologists, philosophers, real estate guides, crop forecasters, mining prospectors, financial reporters, publicity agents, and heaven knows what else. They have to be all these in the day's work, not to mention being little gods to the Indians, heroes twenty-four hours out of twenty-four, and authors at a side line.

The Northwest Mounted Police have a writer's graphic reports. They number quite a few who have the unique word and who can get it without fumbling. Writing is sort of rest for the saddle-soe trooper. Now that the magazines are taking an interest in them, they do even better. This year's report is full of tersely told tragedies. Inspector Fitzgerald's diary in which a brave man, looking dead in the face, jolted down his losing fight with cold and hunger, is only one chapter. The report is better than a novel because the heart-interest is real and the interests are true. This is a blue book who knows for Sunday reading with a pipe, and an easy chair, and one's feet on the table.

The North-West Mounted Police blue book vindicates all other blue books and some day or other a blue book collector might find his book library to become an accomplished fact. The gentle reader, who has been with this writer's feelings for two months will now skip to the end of his company. It is 1912 A. D., and a knobby-headed archaologist of scribbled-out recollections is making drafts and erasures into the rubbish-heap where the blue book library once stood. Without further parley we introduce:

An extract from the report of Professor John Thompson, of the University of Saskatchewan, the Canadian-born employed by the Honorable of Canada to superintend the excavations on the site of the ancient capital of the West.

"I have been said with some indignity that we know less about the M'Intyre and Mann periods of Canada than we do of any of the prehistoric periods which intervene between that era and our own time. It is true, but the reason is that we have not yet begun to dig. The reports of the last year and a half have been so good that we have been able to reconstruct the past, and find national pride and a sense of history. These reports have already established the fact that the Indians were present in a massive stone edifice on the Avenue Street, or Bismarck—it is not certain which—and it was while digging in this part of the ruins that your commissioner came upon a mass of material which will go far to enrich our knowledge of that remote time. The relics, which consist of newspaper clippings, reports (called Hansards) of speeches, diaries, pamphlets, memoirs, and other miscellaneous, were at once destroyed by airplane express to the National Museum at Battledore, where, no doubt, they have already undergone the inspection of the learned Secretary of History, and—so your commissioner dares to hope—of the President of the Republic of Canada, who has never shown a scholar's and a statesman's interests in these matters."

"I may not be as far from your commissioner in setting down the conclusions he formed on the spot, but I conclude, he must admit, and object to a correction by the National Board of Antiquaries, but probably not far from the mark, all things being considered."

"A list of the documents are dated 1912 A. D. They are as lively and as alive as the world expect of a twenty intellectual and progressive people. Most of them relate to the new and events of their Parliament or National Assembly, which seems to have been divided into a lower chamber, Commons, or House, and an upper chamber, Senate, or Sleep House. Whether the latter name is descriptive or derisive your commissioner cannot determine, but, as it was not until the hundred years ago that our Senate became elective thereafter a brief factor in our constitution, the name Sleep House may point at the less desirable condition which obtained previously."

MR. MANTELL AS SHYLOCK

MR. MANTELL AS RICHARD III

MR. MANTELL AS HAMLET

"The Board of Antiquaries will observe that the name of the author under the word 'Shy' prefixed to their names. This was a title of distinction which our democracy no longer tolerates. The title, 'hon.'—perhaps a brief form for 'honorable'—was also common, and then, as now, probably indicated rank more than it did character. The cabalistic letters M. P. after the name—letters which have baffled many of our best philologists—are capable of a very simple explanation. May they not mean member of Parliament? Your commissioner submits this suggestion with deference after collating many originals and comparing many variant texts."

"Some of the documents have no covers, but such as have are bound in dull blue paper, a poor substitute for our cheap, light and almost imperishable aluminum."

"Your commissioner does not pretend to explain the subjects treated. He doubts most of them had a political bearing, or were what the curious paragon of the day called 'local hits.' It is regrettable that many of the allusions are as lost to modern interpretation as the allusion of Aristophanes."

"The Professor's Curious Find."

"The style is more colloquial than good taste sanctions today, but on the whole, crisp and nervous. Your commissioner was particularly interested in the pamphlets, the titles of which he translates herewith into current Canadian, with ruffling notes where necessary."

"The Viper and Their Nests, by Sir Mackenzie Bowell. This is an elaborate allusion which alludes to a poster who was guilty of burlesque."

Buried Alive, by Sir Richard Cartwright. Probably a slur at the Senate or Sleep House. Cartwright was a Spanish admiral who made Canada his adopted country and rose to be a Senator because he was quite willing."

In and Out With Both Parties, by John Costigan. Costigan was a Senator of Irish extraction. He seems to have had the Home Rule habit of siding with the stronger battalion."

Free Trade When the Heavens Fall, by Senator Edwards. Evidently the writer despaired of ever seeing what is now the universally accepted arrangement. It is over eight hundred years since the world, sickened with orgies of high protection, decided to begin all over again, and begin right."

Needless Napalm at Rideau Hall, by James Macdougall. Rideau Hall was the palace of the English King or Governor-General, an expensive and unnecessary office, which disappeared. Macdougall was a bit of a critic and rather sniggering. This pamphlet was written in 1909 A. D., some years before Macdougall was raised to the Senate, where his radical views were reported."

How Peasant Hitler Helped Me, by Sir Richard Scott. The distinguished author, who was a vegetarian, practices his love life of eighty-two years to the good. He is long life is an extraordinary form. In these days of eating germs and enlightened farming, we think of eighty-two as old-fashioned."

The Use of Logarithms in a Scientific Tariff, by Robert N. Ames. This brochure should have been called 'Punching the error.' The central idea is to make the tariff harder to change, by making it more difficult to understand. Tariff, by the way, is an obsolete word, meaning an unreasonable scale of taxes intended to take away money from the mass of the people in order to give it to a few."

What Mind Can Do For Words, by H. Bennett. An inflated essay on the use of stuffed platitudes by a gusty orator from Billardville."

Full-size, Collars Co. Half-size Neck, by Premier Horden. The Premier brag, or should have been, the leader of the party I power. But it did not always work out that way. In this pamphlet, the Premier complains, rather weakly, of certain brutalities followed in his council."

On Preferring One's Self, by Edmund Bristol. A follower of the Horatian maxim, "Videtur profanum vitare et arce." This statesman's achievement, far as they are recorded, hardly entitles him to such a frame of mind."

The Farmer Foolish—My Real Opinion, by Andrew Broder. The article deals with the hideous mistake of the agrarian population, who listen to false prophecies and refuse a free market of ninety million people for their products. The current literature is full of allusions to this lamentable error for which was coined a special word, 'anti-reciprocity.'"

If I Were King, by Dr. Michael Clark, Red Deer. The learned doctor seems to have anticipated most of our modern trade policies. The name Red Deer was given to him for his swiftness in reports. The Sphinx Beaten, by Frank Cochran. Five hundred words by a somewhat scanty scribe on the advantages of looking wise and saying nothing. My Hero, George III, by W. F. Cock-shott. Cockshott was a reactionary who could not keep his mouth shut. Crouching as a Fine Art, by Thomas Crebiter. Written by an expert. My Advantages as a Librarian, by Max for John Corrie. The major acknowledges that he is a brave man. His experience seems to show that he often rushed in where even outsiders feared to tread."

PREMIER BORDEN HAS BEEN INCONSISTENT

Despite His Promises He Has Not Yet Taken Up Question of Government Ownership and Operation of Terminal Elevators—Breezy Correspondence From the Seat of Government.

From Bulletin Correspondent.

Ottawa, March 12.—When Mr. Borden went through the West last summer, he declared from every platform that he was convinced that government ownership and operation of terminal elevators was the only solution of the grievance of the western farmer. Speaking at Winnipeg, he said: "We propose to carry out that policy without delay, if returned to power."

Could any statement be more clear and emphatic? Yet Mr. Borden has been in power since September last. His Minister of Trade and Commerce has passed a grain act through the House of Commons. It does not provide for government ownership and operation of terminals, though the Liberal members have pressed the government to carry out the explicit promise of the Premier to the farmers of the prairie. All Mr. Foster will say is that the government will make an experiment by leasing two elevators. He has made it clear that the government is not friendly to government ownership and operation. All it is going to do is to make an experiment, though Mr. Borden pledged himself to adopt government ownership and operation of terminal elevators "without delay if returned to power."

Out of Sympathy With Farmers. It is becoming more manifest every day that the government is out of sympathy with the western farmer, and that all its energies are being bent to satisfy the great interests of Eastern Canada. The car distribution clause in the Grain Act, which enables the farmer to get his car on the same footing as the elevator man, has been destroyed. Government ownership of terminals is not to be. Then this week, Hon. Frank Oliver, Mr. Clarke and W. A. Buchanan, three western members, in a debate on the grain blockade, exposed the neglect of the government in securing a reduced freight for wheat and oats to Minneapolis for grinding in Cuno and for consumption in the United States. Had action been taken along this line, when the serious nature of the blockade became apparent at the close of 1911, the western farmer would have greatly benefited. The rate was secured for grain for export to Duluth, but that did not relieve the congestion.

Treated as a Joke. When the protest was made in this debate, Hon. Geo. E. Foster, who has a heart of steel towards all western matters, treated it as a joke. He simply made merry at the complaint of the suffering western farmers. On the other hand, the only platform pledge of the new government so far carried out is the establishment of the tariff commission—a scheme to protect high protection and nothing else. The Manufacturers' Association was the only body to demand that commission, and they have secured it as quickly as the government could get the bill through the House. It is as evident as daylight that the Borden government is a dead hand and foe to the interests, trade and commerce of the West. Only two more blinding parties man out any other way.

Attempt to Effect New Route. A remarkable statement regarding progress and cost of construction of the eastern section of the Transcontinental Railway was placed before parliament on Thursday, the 14th, by the Minister of Railways, and was the subject of debate on Monday, the 19th. The statement was evidently carefully prepared and the debate was entered upon on Monday by the government for political effect in the contest then in progress in South of the House. In which the late Minister of Railways was a candidate. The statement gave the total length of line from Montreal to Winnipeg as 1,805 miles. Grading was completed on 1,551 miles, or 87 per cent. of the whole, and track was laid on 1,375 miles of main line, or 76 per cent. of the whole, and on 275 miles of sidings as well. The cost of construction in December 31st, 1911, was given as eighty millions. Construction was expected to be completed by December 31st, 1914, at a further estimated cost of 16 millions. That is, although only 15 per cent. of the grading remained and 24 per cent. of the track laying, the prospective expenditure on these percentages of the total work was estimated at 21.5 per cent. of the whole cost. Although pressed for words on this point, the minister's reply was refused to give further information.

Government's Inconsistency. To the contention on the part of the government, that the late government had laid out a vast program, and that the opposition repudiated it, the government's own figures, they were going to expend vastly greater sums in proportion to the amount of work yet to be done. Whether such was yet to be done, whether or not, proposed expenditure was less than at any rate it proved that the new government with full power in their hands did not intend to in any way reduce the high standard of construction that had been adopted by the late government as necessary to construct the Transcontinental an efficient railway outlet for the ever increasing production of the west.

An instance of the extravagant intentions of the present government was the amount of nine millions estimated as yet to be spent for terminals at Quebec as against half a million already spent by the late government.

An Annual Cost.

By accepting the extravagant estimate of cost to complete, adding possible but improbable contingencies, after completion, assuming interest charges and then compounding the interest on them, the minister's estimate ran up a total assumed prospective cost of $25 millions. Upon this the government supporters argued, first, that this was a staggering cost to the country for which the late government should be condemned; and second, that as the Grand Trunk Pacific would have to carry this cost it could not operate at competing rates and pay the interest. First and second, that the G. T. P. had to carry it. The facts are actually shown by the figures, are, that 22.5 millions of the assumed gross total can only be paid after completion of the road, and then only as a result of failure of the enterprise. Eight millions more is an estimate of betterments required in the first ten years after completion upon which the company must pay interest, as well as upon the original cost of construction. So that, as between the railway company and the government, assuming the figures of the minister of railways, the company will have to pay interest on 112 millions of dollars in the beginning seven years after the completion of the road, and the company will have contributed in interest charges, including interest compounded, 25 millions—which includes estimated betterments—or $2,094 a mile.

What it Has Opened Up. For the first millions contributed by the country a thousand miles of the hitherto inaccessible interior of Ontario and Quebec is opened up to the west. The cost of construction, estimated, 290 miles is cut off the rail and river distance between the wheat fields of Liverpool and the winter ports of Canada are brought within easy reach of each other, and the land and further west.

For the interest charge of $2,094 a mile carried by the company it got a summer and winter outlet for its western grain over a track on which twice as much freight can be handled at the same cost of operation as over any connecting route, and it has the additional advantage of a materially shorter total haul to the ultimate market.

ALDERMAN TIPTON TO USE HIS OWN CHAIR

South Side Alderman Will Use Desk and Chair Which He Occupied in Southwestern Council—Lively Session of Council Expected Tuesday Night.

Everything points to a lively session of the city council for this evening. Notices were given at the last meeting of the council on some of the various civic questions to excite keen interest in the proceedings and may result in a close vote on some of the propositions submitted to come up. A resolution to close the city hall early to the probable absence of the night of supremacy between certain of the new aldermen and members of last year's council, constituting what is known as the "new blood" and "old blood" by Ald. McLean. As the attention of the council is directed to the subject of the city hall early to the probable absence of the night of supremacy between certain of the new aldermen and members of last year's council, constituting what is known as the "new blood" and "old blood" by Ald. McLean. As the attention of the council is directed to the subject of the city hall early to the probable absence of the night of supremacy between certain of the new aldermen and members of last year's council, constituting what is known as the "new blood" and "old blood" by Ald. McLean.

Judge Tipton to Return Soon. Judge Tipton, who was chosen as one of the aldermen from the south side at the recent municipal election, is expected to return to the city from Southern California, and assume his seat in the legislative body of Greater Edmonton. He sent word the other day that the commissioners need not go to the city hall to see him, but to call on him at his new office and desk for his use in the council chamber, as he desired to bring over the furniture he had occupied in the Strathcona council. His request will probably be granted, and he will occupy a place for him before they know he wanted his old seat.

Notwithstanding the action indicated with a view of testing his eligibility to the seat to which he was elected, Ald. Clarke will undoubtedly be present and participate in the council proceedings. He has a legal right to remain pending the case in court and vote on any question that may arise, but in the event of it being shown that he did not possess the proper qualifications, as alleged by those interested in the case, the legality of action taken by the council or any motion in which he voted would have to be reconsidered. At least that is the point urged by ratepayers who have indicated the majority.

Commissioners Are Congratulated. The commissioners received a letter yesterday from James McEwen, who congratulated them on the progress made since their appointment, and said it afforded him much pleasure to forward a copy of the report of the commissioners to the city council. The secretary of the Edmonton branch of the United Farmers of Alberta sent a communication to the commissioners saying that a mission of inspection had come out regarding a resolution adopted by the farmers recently, urging that the board of directors of the Exhibition association should have a larger representation of farmers. The resolution was not directed toward the present board, the letter stated, but for future boards.

Investment Extraordinary

AN OPPORTUNITY

Long Awaited by Thousands of English and French Citizens of Golden Alberta

ST. PAUL DE METIS

The Commercial Center of one of the richest agricultural districts of Alberta soon to be connected with Edmonton and other points by bands of steel. The C.N. Railway, now assured, will open a way territory to rapid development. Thousands of settlers the past four years have poured into this wonderfully rich agricultural section North of the Saskatchewan, and await now only the Railroad's coming to start active development of an Empire a hundred miles square in area. There is no C.P.R. Land, nor Hudson's Bay Land to be held back and thus retard development. This rich territory reaching from the Saskatchewan north 100 miles to Cold Lake is rapidly becoming a solid settlement of thrifty and enterprising farmers.

ST. PAUL

100 miles East of Edmonton and 30 miles North of the Saskatchewan River, is the center of this vast and fertile territory. Its future is assured by this fact alone, if for no other reason. But besides from its future commercial supremacy as the center of this rapidly developing agricultural empire, its future importance as a railroad division point and railroad center is apparent to all who will study the map of Alberta. Situated as it will be on the C.N. Railway, just midway between Edmonton and Battleford, it must surely become the division point of that road. Its importance as the metropolis of this agricultural center cannot be and will not be ignored by the other railroads now looking forward to extensions into this territory. These facts coupled with the knowledge, generally conceded that large coal deposits have been found near St. Paul will aid materially its attraction to railroads. The beauties of St. Paul as a Townsite are not the least of its attractions. It lays high, dry and level with here and there a clump of poplar grove. Lake Therien, fully twelve miles long and several wide, full of fish and dotted with beautiful wooded islands, comes within a quarter of a mile of the Main Street, a Forty Acre Park will be set aside on the Lake Shore and several acres of beautiful Lake Front will be subdivided into Residence Lots. These Lots should appeal strongly to Edmonton people for Summer Home purposes.

WITH THESE POINTS IN MIND can you question the advisability of an investment in St. Paul Real Estate at the prices we quote? We control practically every centrally located Lot in St. Paul, now subdivided or to be subdivided.

The Lots we now offer comprise part of the Homestead of E. Portras, the French Half-Breed Trapper and Trader, who, fourteen years ago, was first to see the importance of St. Paul, as a future center of population and commercial life, and locate there.

The portion now subdivided is centered around the first Store and Home of Mr. Portras and is the HEART of the present and to be business center of St. Paul.

WE DO NOT BELIEVE in subdividing a large townsite to start with, so offer at the present time only about 200 Lots and will add more as the town grows in importance and population.

REMEMBER these Lots now offered are the HEART of the business center. Business Lots sold at Residence Lot Prices, first hand Lots, not Lots sold and resold a dozen times, until when you buy you pay a dozen profits, you should reap these profits yourself. We believe the prices and our plans of development of this important Townsite will advertise St. Paul as nothing else will. We say it is an exceptional investment opportunity and are confident you will agree with us. Visit any of the smaller towns on a railroad, not much larger than St. Paul is today, 65 miles off a Railroad and you will find such Lots as we here offer, selling from two to four times our prices. With the advent of the railroad, St. Paul will speedily grow to a town of from 3,000 to 6,000 people. That will mean to you from 500 per cent. to 2,000 per cent. profit on your investment if you grasp this opportunity and BUY IN THE HEART OF THE TOWN.

St. Paul is growing today. The sound of hammers can be heard on every hand. The citizens are coming alive to their opportunities, they believe in their town and are preparing for her future. Another year will see a long-dreamed dream come true. Then those who purchase St. Paul Real Estate today at Before-Railroad-Prices will reap a harvest of Golden Eagles.

St Paul Business Centre Lots, 50x140 Ft.—10 Days Only

Main St. from $450 to $600 First to Fourth St. $180 to $450

Terms—Third Cash, Balance 3, 9 and 18 months. 6 per cent. interest on deferred payments.

REMEMBER—Sale started Monday, March 11th and continues at these Prices for ten days only. There are only fifteen of the Main Street Lots and they will go quickly. We urge upon you to select your Lots early. Invest NOW and let your money grow with the growth of St. Paul. There is no chance of loss, absolutely none, our claims for St. Paul are based on solid facts, and a full investigation will prove the truth of every statement.

CHARGE OF THE LIGHT BRIGADE

Lord Cardigan's Memo Opens the Old Controversy.

London, Mar. 2.—A statement left to Lord Cardigan, who led the famous charge of the Light Brigade at Balaclava in the Crimean war, October 25, 1854, now published for the first time, throws the responsibility for the heroic blunder on Lord Lucan, who commanded the cavalry division. Although it has been believed that Lucan's aide de camp, Capt. Nolan, gave the erroneous order, Cardigan describes how Lucan ordered him to "attack the Russians in the battery." Cardigan replied: "Certainly, my lord, but allow me to point out that there is a battery in front, a battery on each flank and that the ground is covered with Russian fire-balls."

Lucan answered: "I cannot help that. It is Lord Lucan's position."

Cardigan then stated that the Light Brigade was at ack the enemy."

Cardigan continues: "After advancing about eight yards a shell fell within reach of my horse's feet, and Captain Nolan, who was riding across the front, returned with his arm up through the intervals of the brigade, shrieking like a woman."

Instantly Nolan, seeing that a terrible blunder had been made, rode across the front of the brigade, endeavoring with his sword to direct it to make the flank movement. Nolan intended instead of the Russian front attack which Lucan ordered. Nolan was instantly killed, but his sword was thrust into the ground and he was killed by the Russian fire-balls.

This is the first time it was ever mentioned that he was "screaming like a woman."

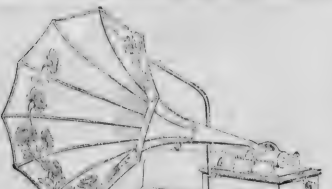

The memorandum reiterates the order of one of the greatest military controversies in British annals.

600 MILES OF STEEL WILL BE LAID THIS YEAR SAYS PREMIER

Premier Balfour Returns From Interviewing Railway Officials in the East.

100 MILES OF STEEL

ON DUNVEGAN LINE

Rumors of General Election in May. Art Without Any Foundation.

Premier Balfour returned to Edmonton yesterday. Interviewed after his arrival in the city the Premier said that his visit to Eastern cities had been chiefly in connection with railway business. Visiting Winnipeg, Regina, Toronto and Montreal, Mr. Balfour has interviewed the officials of the railways which have received guarantees of loans from the Alberta government—the C.N.R., the C.P., the W.R. and the O.T. The Canadian Pacific Company and the Edmonton, Dunvegan and O.C. Railway.

What was the outcome of these interviews? Mr. Balfour was asked. "The results were satisfactory," he replied. "I think I shall be safe in saying that at least 600 miles of steel will be laid in the province this year. The assurance I have received amply justifies the rumors we made in the Legislature when the railway policy was under discussion."

Dunvegan Line. Mr. Balfour said the construction bill he spread over the various lines which had received guarantees. Speaking of the work to be done on the Dunvegan line, Mr. Balfour said the line was to be pushed forward and the promoters hoped to be able to complete this year the laying of the steel as far as the Athabasca river, a distance of over 100 miles from Edmonton. In the other lines Mr. Balfour said he pressed particularly for the laying of the steel on the sections which were already graded. In the respect the companies gave undertakings which were satisfactory.

With regard to the telephone system, the Premier said that a large amount of extension was under order and all the materials for the work had been requisitioned.

An Election Prophecy. Referring to the Conservative party convention held at Calgary, Mr. Balfour said he observed that the Conservatives forecast a general election for the provincial house in May. It was with his usual expressive smile that the Premier said this, and when asked whether it was possible, that the prophecy might come, he replied, with smiling, "It is possible, as most things are possible." As to whether it is probable, he thought he did not think so. I think the house will meet again next session.

Size of House. With regard to the number of representatives in the house, Mr. Balfour said he had seen that the representation in the manufacturing houses was to be increased, but the Alberta government had not yet contemplated making a similar move. He thought, he said, as the province became more agricultural, it would have to be split up. The Premier said from the precedents in convention the Conservatives appeared to have a very small program and seemed to prefer to rely on the support of the Government. The Premier said he had seen that the position of the Government had not been weakened.

Mr. Balfour said he had had a good trip and was glad to say that the name and fame of Alberta were spreading in various quarters.

MAIL PROBLEM IN SOLD MAN. He is to be Labeled From Car With Cinders and Plank.

Omaha, March 11.—From time to time a mail of 20 sacks of cinders from New York and New England en route to Pacific coast points, reaches Omaha last night and today the postal authorities have been busy trying to shove the large iron boxes which can be handled. It is believed the mail is the outcome of an error on the part of the railroad. At Omaha, where a carload of cinders arrived, which was being transported by the Burlington road. The car was placed in a locomotive water tank and a flood of water turned on it. The mail was extinguished and the contents of the mail sacks were soaked and ruined. The car was loaded with cinders and cinders.

VANCOUVER TORIES MEET. Nominating "Solid Five" for Members of Provincial Legislature.

Vancouver, Mar. 9.—The Conservative nomination convention here today, which selected Vancouver's "solid five" members—W. J. Hunter, H. H. Watson, Jr., C. A. S. M. Gair, C. S. Tisdale and A. H. H. McEwen—was held in the evening. The only other name before the convention was that of J. W. White, who, in a brief speech, announced that he was no longer to make a claim in the contest of men now representing the city in the provincial house, and with the consent of his constituents and secondary his name was withdrawn. Vancouver Liberals will nominate their candidate Monday. John Oliver, former Liberal member, was nominated in the old constituency of Delta. Hon. Carter Gifford, Conservative member for Richmond, was also renominated today.

Immense Religious Sign Is Blazoned on Broadway: 1,300 Feet High and 62 Feet Long

New York, March 11.—Broadway has seen almost everything, from cornet strings to grand pianos, advertised in electric signs, but people gazed yesterday as they passed near the Metropolitan tower and saw an entirely new sign, advertising religion. Last night the fiery message read:

"Welcome for everybody in churches of New York."

At one end was a large cross and the words, "Men for religion." Along the bottom ran the flaming line, "Men and Religion Forward Movement." It is the beginning of a great advertising campaign for religion.

The sign is on the roof of a building in 23rd street, just east of Broadway, and is 1,300 feet high, 62 feet long. It is visible for blocks along Broadway. It is the beginning of a great advertising campaign for religion.
